

Rancocas Creek Farm Workshare Program

Farming is hard-work. There isn't just 'always something to do', there are always dozens of things to do! And as such, we rely on a lot of helping hands during the growing season in the form of full-time and part-time staff and volunteers. We also rely on a certain number of 'workshares'. These are folks who are interested in getting their hands dirty, working hard, and doing whatever needs to get done on a given day. That might include hoeing squash, moving irrigation lines, harvesting, pulling weeds, mulching trees, washing veggies and so on. We work outside in all kinds of weather and we take pride in maintaining a positive outlook on the work we have to do! Candidates should be in good physical condition and having some farming or extensive gardening experience is helpful. And while you will certainly learn a lot, the workshare program isn't designed to be educational. It is designed to give folks an introduction to farming and help us get extra hands on board.
